

POLES BITTEREST BOLSHEVIST FOES

NEW YORK, Aug. 20.—Poland is waging a war to the finish with the bolsheviks, using every resource available to combat the Reds. The Polish bolsheviks are having a hot time of it resisting the Poles in southwestern Russia than they face elsewhere, due on their front, according to leaders in Moscow.

The Poles employ different tactics from the other anti-bolsheviks. According to the Poles, the best defense against the Reds is to conduct an offensive. The policy netted a valuable strip of land extending well into Russia, beyond Vinnia. This part of Russia is largely inhabited by Poles, especially the owners of estates, those who have not been killed or driven out by the bolsheviks.

Hard Enemies.

The Reds admit the Poles are harder enemies to handle than any other of their immediate neighbors. The Poles hang on to everything they take, and withstand counter attacks, made by the bolsheviks with both men and money. According to many who have been along the Kolchak front, the bolsheviks can buy enough of the enemy troops, anytime they ship out a carload of rubles, to even up for losses.

These tactics fail to win the fighters of the aggressive Paderewski government. The Poles say they do not want their rich productive country to fall into the hands of the Reds, who would eagerly confiscate food from Poland for their fighting men in Lithuania.

Dantzig is going to be a troublesome city for the Poles, according to American officers who were there attached to the food missions. The Americans say the Poles will have a difficult time holding Dantzig, now that they are given practical control of it by the Paris peace conference. Dantzig is more German than Polish, in the views of most Americans. However, if the city were left in the hands of the Germans, the Poles would be entirely cut off from water navigation.

New Polish Port.

Poland's new port is one of the most distinctive cities in all Germany. It is old and quaint and has a fine harbor. Both the Poles and the Germans have come to realize this in the last six months, by reason of the thousands of tons of American food unloading there and sent in barges up the river to Warsaw.

When the food first arrived the Americans employed Germans to unload it from the ships. So much food disappeared that a stringent system of examination had to be used, to make sure that the Poles would get anything at all. The German looks down on the Pole, and is abusive of him. The Germans resented the American food being sent through Dantzig to the Poles.

The whole situation has developed into a sore spot which the Polish regime will find difficulty in handling. They are alive to the opposition, fostered very largely by German propaganda, according to the Americans there, and are taking steps to counteract pro-German movements.

UNROMANTIC 'COP' UPSETS WEDDING

NEW YORK, Aug. 20.—"Babies in the Wood" has been brought down to real life over in Flushing, Brooklyn, by two of the most persistent and youthful lovers imaginable.

But an unromantic policeman disturbed "Love's Young Dream," and now the "Babies" instead of exchanging fond glances and whisperings of love, face charges of vagrancy to which they have already pleaded guilty.

Long have the "Babies" known each other, and long have they loved, very long, in fact. Musette Bragg confesses to seventeen, while Mather Boys, the ardent lover, admits he is one year younger than his sweet heart.

Stern parents frowned on such a proposition as a wedding, so the "Babies" ran away from home. They would battle the cruel world together and get married. With the plan settled in their own minds, they started out. The path was thorny through the day, and by night Prospect Park and a bench offered rest. So they lay down to sleep and continue their journey on the morrow. An inquisitive moon shed too much light on the sleepers, and the policeman did the rest.

THIEF TAKES RED HOT STOVE AND WARM MEAL

DALLAS, Tex., Aug. 20.—While Mrs. Ella Brooks was chatting with her next door neighbor a thief entered her kitchen and stole her red hot cook stove and sizzling Sunday dinner. It was a gas stove and the thief just unjointed the pipe and lifted the stove and dinner out and disappeared. The following day another hot stove and tasty dinner was reported stolen.

OPPOSE BRITISH AIMS IN PERSIA.

PARIS, Aug. 20.—The headings of French newspapers, according to a copyrighted cable to the Philadelphia Public Ledger, show strong hostility to the extensive British influence in Persia, Mesopotamia and Syria, which they say is at the expense of France. The Temps points out that the new Anglo-Persian agreement, which guarantees independence of Persia in words, virtually places Persia under British control.

Story of "Home, Sweet Home"

John Howard Payne, author of "Home, Sweet Home," was born in New York in 1791, made his debut as an actor in 1809, was successful in various roles, went to England in 1813, where for years he wrote poems and plays and managed theaters. The song which made Payne famous occurs in his play, "Maid of Milan," produced at Covent Garden Theater in 1823. The music was adapted from an old melody which Payne had heard in Italy.

In 1832 Payne returned to America, was made consul at Tunis in 1842, was recalled three years later, reappointed in 1851, where he died in 1852. In 1883 Payne's remains were brought from Tunis to Washington, where they now repose. The same tender sentiment that prompted John Howard Payne to write his immortal song lurks within the breast of EVERY MAN, and at times makes him YEARN for a HOME OF HIS OWN.
